FOR RELEASE SATURDAY, AUGUST 29

Dr. Egbert W. Pfeiffer and Arnold J. Silverman will join the Montana State University faculty in September as assistant professors, President H. K. Newburn announced.

Dr. Pfeiffer, who has been an assistant professor of anatomy at the University of North Dakota for the past two years, will teach zoology at MSU. He holds a bachelor's degree from Cornell University, a master's from the University of British Columbia, and a doctorate from the University of California. He has taught at Utah State Agricultural College, the University of British Columbia, the University of Oregon, and the College of Idaho. From 1940-45, he was an infantry instructor. He has written articles for technical journals.

Silverman will teach geology at the University and will assist in the Geology Department's expanded graduate program. For the past two years he was an instructor at Brooklyn College; and he has been a teaching assistant at Boston University and Rutgers and a lecturer in geology at Columbia University. He earned a B. A. in geology, magna cum laude, from Boston University and an M. A. in geology from Columbia, where he has been working toward a Ph. D. since 1957. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa scholastic honorary.
